

Kimberly Lucas is the Founder and Chief People Connector at Goldstone Partners, Inc. The firm specializes in recruitment strategy and on-demand search for early stage and privately-held companies. As a seasoned search consultant and entrepreneur, Kimberly understands what it takes to be successful in a start-up environment and works with company leadership to help build 'rock star' management teams and internal talent acquisition competencies. For more than fifteen years she has worked successfully as a trusted advisor with local and global organizations across disciplines including software/IT, sales, marketing, product development and operations. A client focused approach and ability to build partner relationships is evident in the long-standing relationships and company performance.

Kimberly was a founding partner of Spitfire Group responsible for sales, marketing, talent acquisition and administrative oversight. Spitfire was named to the Mercury 100 in 2006 and 2007, an award reserved for the fastest growing privately-held companies in Boulder County. Previously, Kimberly served in leadership positions at MBS, Hitachi Consulting and RHI Consulting, a division of Robert Half International. She was responsible for the introduction of this technical division in the Colorado market. Under her leadership, the Colorado area established four offices and was a recognized Division Leader.

Kimberly studied Business Administration at Metropolitan State College, is an alumnus of the CU Leeds School of Business Technology Leadership program and a 2007 member of 50 for Colorado. As an active member of the business community, Kimberly serves on the board of the Society for Information Management and an Advisory Board Member at the Center for Innovation, Metropolitan State College. She also supports Rockies Venture Club, Denver Metro Chamber GMAP, and the Denver Art Museum.
